Parish Website and Emails

The parish website gets a makeover

As you may have seen, a refreshed parish website has been published at www.bishopstoneandhintonparva.org. The address is always recorded at the bottom of this page. The intention behind it is to provide an easy to navigate source of local information and a way to sign up for the parish email list. It is provided by the parish council for the benefit of everyone in the parish. Ideas for content are always welcome, as are any local pictures you may have. Comments can be sent directly from the site or to admin@www.bishopstoneandhintonparva.org, as the new team get to grips with the challenge. Big thanks go to Andy Greenhalgh for running the site so well over the last 7 years.

The Ridgeway Run 2019 is proudly sponsoring Riding for the Disabled Association (RDA), a charity that makes a difference. Based in Chilton Foliat, Lambourn RDA are completely self-supporting, so fund raising is essential in order to run a local riding centre. We support children and adults from Hungerford, Kintbury, Lambourn, Newbury, Thatcham and the surrounding villages. Emma McIntosh & Patricia Cleverley founded the Ridgeway Run in 2016. Best friends and keen runners, running has always been the perfect excuse to catch up, keep fit and run the dogs; both have run their share of events, ranging from 5km to 100km, in the UK & overseas. Their vision has always been to provide a local event for local causes, sharing with fellow runners the beautiful (and, it has to be mentioned, hilly) Ridgeway and surrounding footpaths. Over time they have forged lasting relationships with runners, local communities, landowners and some fantastic people who have volunteered their time to marshal and be part of the team. Created for everyone, the hare and the tortoise, they welcome everyone and look forward to seeing you on the day!

For registration please go to: www.theridgewayrun.com/registration and to sponsor Lambourn RDA please go to:

The Ridgeway Run are extremely grateful to Bower & Bailey Solicitors, Swindon and Pinewood School, Bourton for their continued support and sponsorship of the run.

What3words

Emergency services have always found it difficult to find some of our properties simply because a single postcode can cover such a large rural area. It's even more difficult for homes that have house names rather than numbers. And minutes can save lives. A number of us have been promoting a mobile phone app called What3words. This has divided the planet into 3 metre squares and given each square a unique name using just three words. As a result, medical and other supplies are now being delivered to villages that are off the beaten track, all over the world.

Our emergency services are using this mobile phone app. increasingly. Thames Valley Air Ambulance are the latest to do so. With this in mind, can I suggest that we get the app. and make a note of the three words for our homes and stick that note either by or on our home phones.

Because the squares measure only three metres by three metres, you might find some hilarious names of squares that fall within your property. One of the squares for the Vicarage is attends.fizzled.yacht While serving in the RNLI it is safe to say that I did indeed attend to one or two of these, especially during Cowes Week!

So, as you can see, this can make the name even more memorable. Perhaps our neighbours who struggle with technology might appreciate a bit of help with this too.

With best wishes and prayers

The Village Hall, Bishopstone - Recruiting now

Further notes from the village hall; I would like to thank Doris Brown, who has decided to step down from the committee. Her contribution to the Hall committee over the years will be missed, in particular her representing of the WI. Thank you, Doris! As a result of our dwindling numbers, we are now seeking additional committee members to swell our ranks. Don't worry - it's not a tyrannical regime behind those blackout curtains, we have just had a few members who have either moved away or can no longer spare the time. We now have a number of projects underway with regard to the upkeep of the hall which could do with some additional resource and input. It's fun too, and a wonderful way to contribute to the community. Please do get in touch if you are interested to learn more. We tend to meet once per month with additional commitments for specific projects, film nights, decorating, gardening or form filling for applications licenses and so forth. If anyone would like to join our hall committee please do email me, Richard Walker:

Refreshments - Interval

After the summer recess, the volunteer committee at City Lights reconvened on one of our balmy summer evenings to take in a draught of local ale and review the selections for our autumn programme. After much debate, and a last minute pitch from our resident bar keeper, we were delighted to formalise the programme. Our first film will be Fisherman's Friends, which is a wonderful British-made film, based on a true story about a group of Cornish fishermen who formed a local a cappella group performing sea shanties. The humour may be a little predictable but the cast, including Daniel Mays and Tuppence Middleton, put on a sterling show! Come down and enjoy.

Dickie's Diary

As I write this on August 12th, a date that hitherto was referred to as glorious, our weather here is unsettled and the combine is not making fast progress. Our rape crop was always going to be disappointing but at least it came in dry with masses of black flea beetles amongst the rape seed. They were part of the problem, inhibiting growth along with poor weed control in a non vigorous crop. We first grew rape forty years ago and despite technological advances in seed breeding and agronomy this year has turned in our lowest yield ever at close to 1/t acre 2.5t/hect. Now we are still doing spring barley. A good crop perhaps, at 3t/acre, but several fields have what we call lodged ie they are flat in patches. Barley is harder to cut than wheat so the inclement weather is not ideal. Wheat looks good, but bad weather could yet be a spoiler.

After a break in August, the monthly Farmers' Market will appear again in September. If you haven't been down for a while here's a taste of some of what you might find: fresh veg, milk, plants and locally reared meat... plus free tea, coffee, and homemade cakes provided by the Coffee Morning team.

Huge thanks to all who came in June and supported the Hydrotherapy pool - we were able to give them £184.22, and, in July, Wiltshire Treehouse, who do wonderful work supporting bereaved children and their families, went away with a donation of £255 for which they were extremely grateful.

This month we shall be supporting Pennyhooks Farm, a beautiful, small organic beef farm near Shrivenham providing a unique experience for young people and adults with Autism Spectrum Condition (ASC).

We look forward to seeing you!

The Vicar's Letter

Dear Friends and Neighbours

September marks the beginning of a new academic year. Little people will be attending school for the very first time; not so little people will be beginning a new school year perhaps in a different class, school, college or even university. And every day has the potential to be the start of something amazing and new; however little we may be! Lin-Manuel Miranda goes even further - Every day has the potential to be the greatest day of your life. Jo and Harri were sat in a pub and came up with the following insight: our lives are like a square window with four panes. It's known as the Johari Window. Drawing this out on a piece of paper helps us to see what they mean.

Basically, it's a square divided into four equal squares. The top left hand pane holds information that we know about ourselves and that other people know about us. The top right hand pane holds information that we know about us that other people don't. The bottom left pane holds information that others know about us that we don't, and the bottom right hand pane holds information that none of us know about us; and this is our potential - full of mystery. It's a way of helping us understand our relationships with ourselves and those around us.

Some of us may remember a childhood TV programme called Playschool. We were invited to look through a round window, an arched window or a square window, to discover something new. A bit like the fourth pane in the JoHari window. Discovery can be exciting and we don't have to hike off to another part of the world to do it. There are many in our villages that have discovered things about our local history and are only too keen to share, given the opportunity.

So what might help to make today the greatest day of our life? Jo and Harri might say it's about our relationships and our local historians might agree, in as much as what has gone before is what we are building from. The ultimate question has to be so where are we headed? Crops are made to eat, beer is made to quench thirst (in the middle-ages it was safer to drink than water) and we are made to Love; something that is eternal. Just as crops need a field and beer needs a brewery, we too need to connect with where we come from. If we want a full life, we need a True Life in God (God, that three letter spelling of the word Love).

Frances J Roberts puts it this way: Many a ship has sailed from port to port with no interference from Me, because Strong Will has been at the wheel. Multitudes of pleasure cruises go merrily on their way, untouched by the power of My hand. But you have put your life into My keeping, and because you are depending on Me for guidance and direction, I shall give it. Move on steadily, and know that the waters that carry you are the waters of My love and My kindness, and I will keep you on the right course. So whether you are beginning a new term, or simply trying to make today the greatest day of your life. I wish you bon voyage. If you have anything that you would like our village prayer group to pray for please contact:

Pimm's they said, on the lawn they said, it'll be fun they said....you know what; it was. A unique mix of merry makers, shady spies and cream tea lovers. What could have prompted this strange assembly of disparate peoples? Word on the street was that it was a charity event for Root & Branch, who devise friendly activities for people with mental health issues. A lofty ideal I thought, one that could bring reason to the county. No one needs to ask me twice to drink for a good cause, so I grabbed my sunglasses and wet suit, and prepared to bathe in the English weather (the disposable weather report had as always hedged its bets on all outcomes).

In true contrarian style, sods law, decreed that, actually, the weather would be fine for the event. Even the pugnacious hoards of wasps that arrived with single minded determination to intimidate the revellers had their bellicose nature quashed by sipping small amounts of alcohol.

Through the Pimm's haze I dimly remember some sort of spy threat to the village that could be stopped... or started, I forget which, by hunting around the garden finding the right books and constructing a mysterious message, which in turn would do something, probably destroy the village. And what village event could be completed without a raffle? This one turned out to be stuck on a time loop; out of the ten tickets I bought, I must have won 5 times! Though I could have been mistaken...

All in all, it was a delightful afternoon and I hear on the wine vine that over £500 was raised for those good eggs at Root & Branch. I personally cannot wait until the next bacchanalian revelry to wet my proverbial whistle.

Jonathon Boon

Thank you Kevin Morrison for the photograph

Well! What a great way to relax on a Sunday afternoon, sipping a fruity Pimms while being serenaded with gentle guitar playing. The cleverly devised quiz trail kept minds entertained and sharply focused - well, in my case, maybe not so very focused, when delicious cream teas were competing for my attention.

A special thank you to Marion and Rod Peck for hosting the event in their beautiful garden and to the team of cheerful gardening club helpers.

Many thanks to everyone who came, for all your donations, and making the afternoon such a success.

9th October - Aldetha Raymond: Insects that make Christmas

Without these fifteen important insects working hard to pollinate a range of traditional dinner ingredients, our Christmas meal would be a very different story... (and she's not just talking about bees.) Sit back, let your taste buds tingle and gain a new insight to fruits, vegetables and even chocolate! Aldetha teaches horticulture and small-holding courses from her Little Foxes Farm, she also teaches biological sciences at Bristol University's Botanical Gardens, and is a full-time lecturer in horticulture at Lackham College.

Village Produce Show

Saturday 14th September The Village Hall, Bishopstone

Staging: 8.00 – 10.45am Judging commences: 11.00am Show opens to public: 3.00pm

Help us to keep this village tradition alive. The flowers alone are worth coming to see, not to mention the fruit and veg (especially the quirky veg). Get involved and take some photographs, don those aprons - do people still wear aprons? - and have a go at Thomas Whitaker's (age 11) recipe, or, if you fancy something slightly trickier, make a Russian Sandwich Cake. If art and craft is your thing, there are categories for all ages. Open to all who live within a 10-mile radius of Bishopstone. Trophies and prizes to be won!

Show Schedules are now available from:

Sheila Collins, 2 Poveys Place and Chris Thomas, Littlecot, High Street, Bishopstone; Mogs Boon, Brock Cottage, Hinton Parva; The Ashbury Village Shop; or you can contact us via the email address banddgardeningsoc@gmail.com.

The Royal Oak Diary

Glorious fin de siècle days here in Bishopstone as we mount our last possibly futile protest against Brexit from our 'umble Cues Lane stronghold. The Oak charabanc will be leaving the village about 8.30am on 19th October, and no doubt returning late the same day with a bit of drink on board. The 2m+ people expected to attend this minor inconvenience will be asked to stage a sit down protest at the end. This could cause some extra and hugely enjoyable congestion. We might have room on the bus for up to 40 people—staff, customers, friends, neighbours, supporters—but I am realistic enough to understand that I might be the only person on it. The charge will be £10 per person, up from the fiver I previously suggested now I understand the demand for buses that day. And if you want to come please leave us a message, somewhere, soon-ish. If you don't think a village pub should involve itself in these affairs, all rude correspondence will be accepted in the normal way, and pinned up in the ladies' loo, with other unsuitable cartoons. (We might not be the world's best business people, but our conservative estimates suggest that the Brexit farce has so far cost Eastbrook about £150k, over 3 years—milk and meat export market uncertainty, domestic retailers drawing in their horns...I am sure Mr Johnson and Mr Gove's business rescue fund won't dribble down to small local employers, but I might be wrong). Brexit and all it has involved so far will push many smaller sustainable businesses to the brink. Just what the world wants as we wash up on the rocky shores of Greenland and the Arctic.

In the normal, leisure side, of our business, we are hosting an organic wine and charcuterie tasting in two different locations on the farm on 13th September, ominously a Friday, late afternoon, so it'll probably be punctuated by floods and thunderstorms. We're revising our wine list, and after a practice run last year, we find there are few better places and ways to taste wine than gazing over towards Ashdown, or being nuzzled by a small pig. Our charcuterie micro business continues to produce amazing stuff—the organic corned beef (yes, corned beef—I refused it when my mother offered it to me 50 years ago) is a world away from anything you've ever tasted before. Price per person is £50, but this includes two course a la carte supper that evening. I'm sure we could negotiate on a supper-free basis, as well.

The world of sport will be dominated this autumn by the Rugby World Cup, so the famous Royal Oak telly will be dusted down and asked to perform at all odd hours of the day—lovely breakfast for rugby fans as we watch the goings-on in Japan. The landlord will be watching anyway, so come and join him and his organic bacon sandwiches. And it won't go on forever, you England fans. You could be bored by mid-October, and, who knows, supporting independence-loving Scotland, for all sort of reasons.

If this reaches you by 24th August, live music from Hooch upstairs that night from 8.30pm, no tickets required—great pop dance band, and we all want to dance with Lisa on her 35th birthday, of course, don't we?

The landlord recognises that he owes a few bottles of apple juice from last year's harvest (he says he lost his book...) but The Royal Oak would love every spare apple or other suitable fruit (berries, grapes, rhubarb, pears etc) for its annual juice making, and it will try to repay the favours better this year. We can collect, or you can drop off. Please contact us if the former. If the latter, drop them near the pub back door. With a name or telephone number, please. Alternatively, if you want your own juice and have enough apples/pears etc to make it worthwhile, contact Richard Paget on 07825 372 225. He makes juice every autumn for three months, from his mobile juicer the far side of Hungerford, starting mid August.

Exhausted of Hinton Parva

The truth, the whole truth, and something purporting to be the truth

We are, we're told, living in the post truth age, with facts manipulated in a way worthy of a 1980s estate agent (apologies to any of those out there; I'm sure a few of you had integrity. Not sorry to anyone who ever used the phrase deceptively spacious to describe a rabbit hutch, however; you should have known better.). We see footage on TV of events as they occur, only to be told afterwards that they didn't happen. We hear that cheering throngs greeted a president's arrival, despite having seen news footage showing a turnout of about twelve angry people waving placards, bolstered by a couple of happy labradors out for a walk.

Advertisers excel at manipulating us with loosely disguised facts and pseudo-scientific phrases. Boswellox is still a term much used in the Mantelpiece household; it's a handy word with a multitude of uses. We generally shout it at the television when people are spouting total nonsense - as in what a complete load of old boswellox. We seem to be using the word more and more these days.

We have an engineer friend who vehemently dislikes a specific manufacturer of expensive electrical items, fuelled by said manufacturer's advertising of their digital motors. These are not, apparently, a thing; they do not exist. So he was incensed when his daughter was, as he saw it, suckered into spending several hundred pounds on a hairdryer manufactured by the digital-motor man. We thought he'd blow a non-digital gasket when told that the hairdryer's main feature was that it produced a stream of wide air. If you have any idea what wide air looks like, please send details on a postcard to the Editor. . .

To a lot of us, post-truth sounds an awful lot like lying. Which takes me neatly to the snippet I spotted in the press regarding the government team which has been set up to respond to any anti-Brexit stories, giving them a more positive spin. Who will be on the team, I wonder?

When someone suggests we are in danger from eating chlorinated chicken, will Nigella appear in print, extolling the virtue of a quick swim after a chicken vindaloo, thus cutting out the need to use expensive chemicals to clean swimming pools? Threats of empty shelves at the supermarkets offer the ideal opportunity for Alan Titchmarsh to advise us on digging an allotment to produce tasty home-grown veg, while that nice doctor who was on Strictly can let us know how many health benefits there are in digging. There again, we now hear that restricting calorie intake can be a good thing for one's longevity - so perhaps we should all embrace hunger and steer clear of Tim Finney's temptingly tasty turnips.

And the most beloved Environmentalist in the nation, David Attenborough himself, can point out to us that shortages of petrol would be a good thing as we try to reduce our emissions.

Before I forget, Hinton Parva will soon be advertising for a fully qualified pole-squatter who has a good head for heights, and who is also a member of the Magic Circle, specialising in producing flags from their sleeves. Said pole-squatter will be needed should the gizmos and gadgets being developed to address our village hall flag issue (see Ed's column) fail to provide a solution. Of course, this could be a complete load of boswellox. . .

Mrs Mantelpiece

And Almost Finally...

Thank you Mrs M, Howard's appeal for a solution to how to stop the village hall flag from tearing has produced other interesting responses. Lowering via a computer programme? Not viable says a naval engineer, flags tend to wrap round the flag pole. A telescopic flag pole? An untearable flag? A virtual holographic flag? A ceremony each night lowering it to the accompaniment of a bugle?

How are your musical skills, Howard?
